

THE TOMATO

food & drink

Nicoletta Nafi of Brunello, producer Ciacci Piccolomini d'Aragona visited Edmonton recently for tastings at the Wine Cellar and Color de Vino and a sold-out dinner at Uccellino. Piccolomini is a traditional Brunello producer with well-situated vineyards. They eschew new wood, preferring neutral large barrels made from Croation oak. The elegant and delicious Rosso di Montalcino is a terrific first course wine. We could also be convinced to open a bottle with popcorn and a movie. They do make some wines other than Sangiovese; take the Ateo (the atheist) made from Merlot and Cabernet planted in 2002. Delish!

Uccellino & Ciacci Piccolomini d'Aragona by Mary Bailey <http://thetomato.ca/wine-maven/wine-maven-14>

THE TOMATO

food & drink

Uccellino & Ciacchi Piccolomini d'Aragona by Mary Bailey <http://thetomato.ca/wine-maven/wine-maven-14>